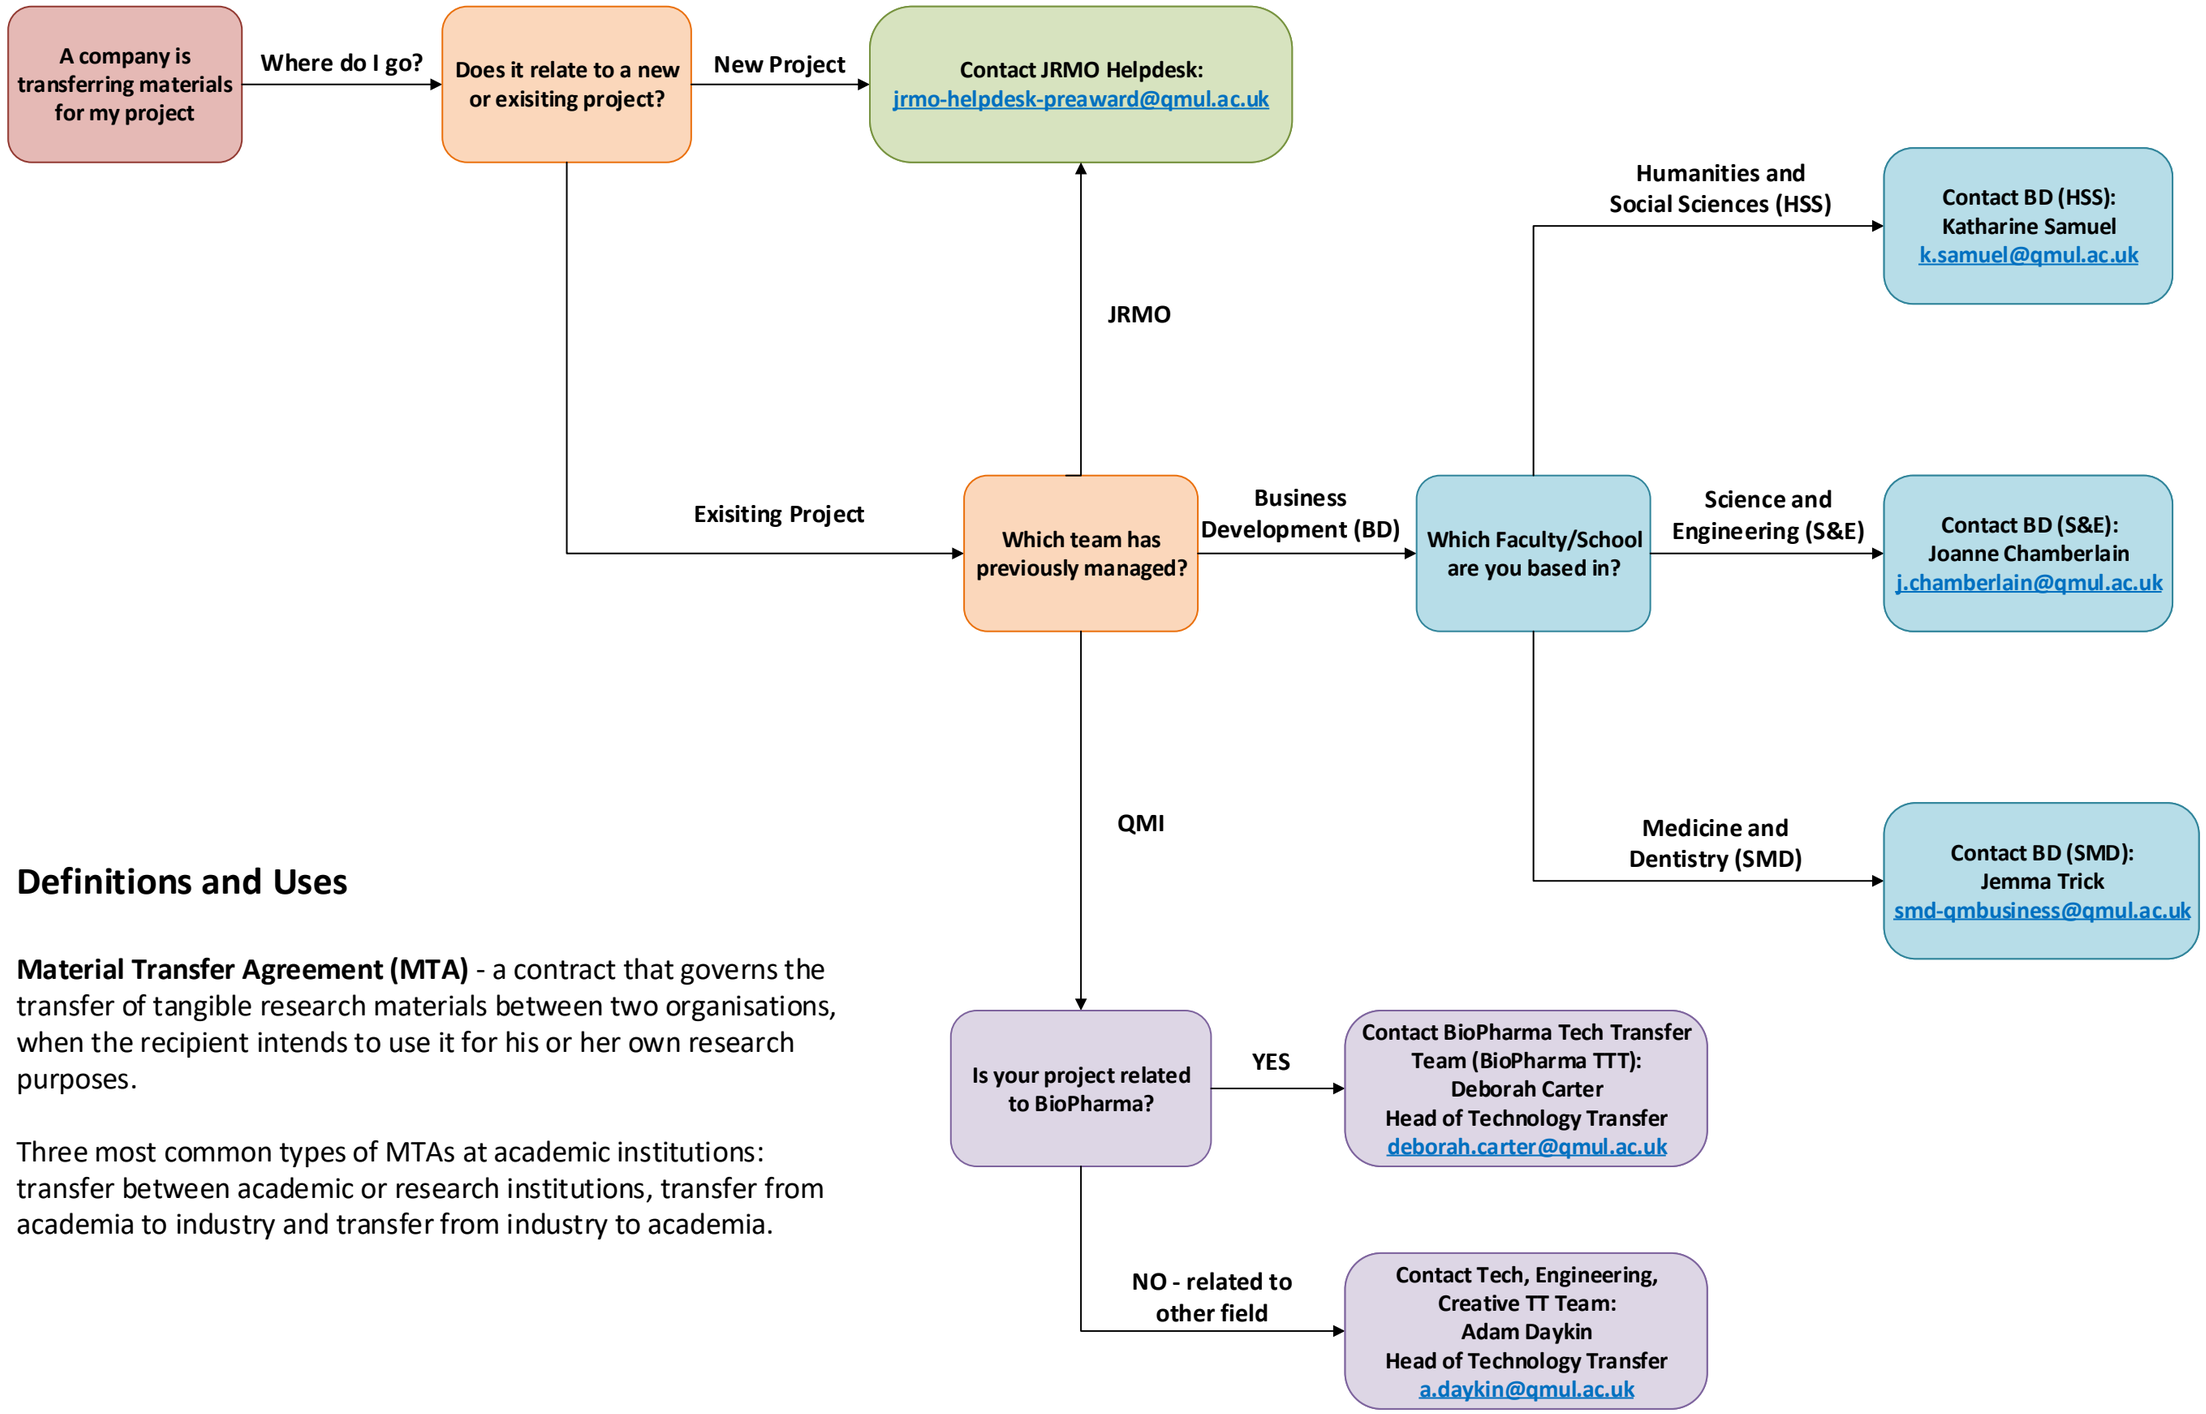
A Company is Transferring Materials for my Project



Definitions and Uses

Material Transfer Agreement (MTA) - a contract that governs the transfer of tangible research materials between two organisations, when the recipient intends to use it for his or her own research purposes.

Three most common types of MTAs at academic institutions: transfer between academic or research institutions, transfer from academia to industry and transfer from industry to academia.