

2 (c) Queen Mary Ethical Partnerships Policy

Purpose and scope

1. This policy outlines the principles through which we ensure that our educational partnerships are consistent with Queen Mary's Purpose and charitable aims, support the achievement of the Queen Mary Strategy and embody the Queen Mary Values that underpin them. It applies to all of our partnerships that support the delivery of teaching and postgraduate research, including:

- collaborative programmes of study, research and training;
- individual modules that are delivered collaboratively;
- articulation and progression arrangements with partner institutions;
- study abroad, exchange and other mobility arrangements for students;
- placement learning, work experience and internships; and
- agreements with student recruitment agencies.

Authority

2. Senate holds responsibility, subject to the general superintendence of Council, for the academic activities of Queen Mary, including for safeguarding academic standards and the quality of the student experience, and for supporting and fostering academic freedom. Senate delegates its responsibilities in respect of educational partnerships as follows:

- Partnerships Board determines the suitability of potential partners, making reports on issues of strategic significance to Senate and the Queen Mary Senior Executive as appropriate (in practice, Partnerships Board delegates responsibility for the approval and management of agreements with student recruitment agencies to the International Office);
- Taught Programmes Board considers detailed academic proposals for taught programmes and modules that are delivered through collaborative arrangements;
- Ethics of Research Committee oversees the criteria and procedures for granting ethical approval for research.

3. Partnerships with long-term strategic significance for Queen Mary require the approval of Council, consistent with its responsibility for:

- approving the mission and strategy, as well as securing the financial sustainability, of QueenMary;
- safeguarding the reputation and Values of Queen Mary.
- providing for the general welfare of students, in consultation with Senate.

Principle 1: Integrity and ethical standards

4. Queen Mary is committed to operating ethically across the full range of its activities, thereby safeguarding its reputation, as well as that of the UK higher education sector. In addition to operating ethically ourselves, we will undertake due diligence checks and risk assessments on all potential partners, giving appropriate emphasis to the principles of:

- good governance;

- financial probity and sustainability;
- freedom from undue influence and conflicts of interest;
- compliance with legal obligations and professional standards; and
- capacity to enter into the proposed partnership.

5. The same ethical standards apply to bodies that provide sponsorship to our students, although Queen Mary's contractual relationship will be with the student in the majority of cases, rather than with the sponsor. In order to ensure that the principles outlined in this policy are put into practice, all partnerships will be governed by an appropriate written agreement and reviewed on a periodic basis. These agreements will prohibit partners from transferring or sub-contracting their obligations to others without Queen Mary's approval.

Principle 2: Academic standards

7. Queen Mary adheres unequivocally to its fundamental academic mission, which is to pursue the creation and dissemination of knowledge to the highest international standards, thereby transforming wider society and the lives of students and staff. To this end, we will only enter into educational partnerships that:

- support the achievement of the Queen Mary Strategy;
- contribute to and enhance the reputation of Queen Mary; and
- embody our Values and commitment to freedom of speech within the law.

8. Queen Mary holds ultimate responsibility for the academic standards of its awards and the quality of the learning opportunities of its students. The same standards apply to all our educational activities, including partnerships. In order to safeguard Queen Mary's academic standards and reputation, we will not:

- delegate final decisions on the admission of students to our programmes, or take account of factors other than academic merit and potential in admission decisions;
- delegate final decisions on the assessment of students, or take account of factors other than academic and relevant professional attainment when conferring academic credit and awards;
- enter into validation or franchise arrangements.

Principle 3: Equality and diversity

9. Queen Mary is diverse and inclusive, with a proud record of nurturing and supporting the best and brightest of students, and the most talented staff, regardless of their social or economic background. We are committed to creating and maintaining a community in which all people can learn, work and interact freely without fear of discrimination, prejudice or harassment. A continued adherence to this tradition will inform our educational partnerships. To this end, we will take account of information about the commitment of potential partners to equality and diversity, as well as information about the local context and legislation, in our due diligence and risk assessment processes.

Relevant policies:

- Equal Opportunities Policy Statement
- Dignity at Work Policy Statement
- Harassment Policy

Principle 4: Engagement with local, national and international communities

10. Queen Mary is equally committed to the achievement of the highest international standards in education and to the service of its local communities through public engagement and the promotion of opportunity to individuals less favoured by financial or social background. This defining and differentiating characteristic of Queen Mary will inform the development of our educational partnerships, whether they are to embed an international dimension in our activities, to further enhance our stature as a leading global university, or to achieve maximum impact from our academic work through public engagement and partnerships. We will be respectful of local and cultural differences of approach in all our interactions with partners, nationally and internationally.
